

Making The Connection

American Green Holdings is already on its way to becoming one of the most important names in the alternative fuel industry. We have created great relationships with noted green celebrities, helping Merle Haggard go green by making AGH his first biodiesel fillup, letting noted solar energy proponent Larry Hagman find his voice in alternative fuels by joining our Board of Directors, and building Willie Nelson a “biodiesel hotrod” for his buddy Kinky Friedman to take on the campaign trail.

We have improved methods of biodiesel production, beaten gasoline’s performance with ethanol, made motorcycles run off of corn liquor, brought energy plans to new markets and created new marketplaces for alternative fuels online.

Our staff of consultants and engineers can meet everything from your biggest energy concerns to the minute details of that all-important grant proposal.

Our People

Russel Gehrke is a well-regarded alternative fuel engineer who has appeared on The Discovery Channel, Cool Fuel Roadtrips and his own pilot television show, Eco-Outlaws. Gehrke has worked on many celebrity projects involving alternative energy, including making hotrods for Willie Nelson and hooking John Paul DeJoria (Paul Mitchell Systems) up with the ultimate street-legal eco-bike.

The Bootlegger, a Russ Gehrke creation which runs off corn liquor.

Robert Wood is the former Director of the Institute of Ecolonomics at Missouri Southern State University. Wood has consulted on numerous alt-energy projects throughout the nation, and is especially well-versed in regional issues and feedstock development. Wood helped Dennis Weaver turn his dream of college instruction on Ecolonomics into a reality, and is now bringing his considerable experience into the private sector.
